Answer Guidelines:

1A. Does this interrogative request an answer?

- Answer YES if it requires an answer and NO if it does not require an answer. Statements like hello or hi are not considered to expect an answer. But if a statement uses the imperative tense, e.g., 'legalise abortion' this is considered as requiring an answer.

1B. If NO to 1A. Is this an affirmative interrogative?

- Here, NA (not applicable) if YES to 1A. If it is a simple noun phrase such as 'technology and society', answer NO. If it is a statement such as 'Guns are too easy to buy in some countries', answer YES.

2A. Is this an interrogative that expects a yes or no answer?

- Think: can this question be answered with yes / no? Answer YES if it can be answered with yes/no, and NO if it cannot be answered with yes/no. Answer NA if not relevant; e.g, does not request an answer and is not an affirmative statement.
- E.g., Should college be tuition-free? Is YES.

2B. Does it explicitly present a series of options?

- Answer YES if the questioner explicitly gives a list from which the answerer can choose an answer. Answer NO if the question does not define an explicit list.
- E.g., "Do you think animals go to heaven or hell?" This is YES because the answerer has to choose between "heaven" and "hell."

2C. How many options does it present?

- This question is about how the user defines the space of possible answers in the way they ask their question. It needs to be answered with either 0, 1, 2, or U.
- 0 is given for affirmative statements because they do not directly incite an answer and thereby define an answer space of 0. E.g., "Guns are too easy to buy in some countries".
- 'Why questions', questions that ask about the cause of something should be answered with 1. This is because by asking about the cause of something, they are assuming that cause to exist. E.g., "Why do criminal migrants keep living and making crime in our countries?" is 1, because the way the questioner formulated this question does not incite the answerer to say that migrants are not necessarily criminal.
- 2 is given if the question can be answered with yes or no, and if the questioner explicitly describes two options in their question, e.g., "Is abortion a good or a bad thing?".
- U is given if the answer space is undefined. This is assigned to descriptive, open-ended questions. E.g., "What are some steps we could take to combat global warming?".

3A. Do answers to this interrogative require some other fact/opinion already being true?

- Only questions that ask about the cause of some fact the questioner assumes to be true should be answered with YES here. "Tell me why Donald Trump will be the next president elect" because an answer requires that Trump will be the next president. Or "why are people so comfortable with eating animal corpses" is also YES. Otherwise NO.

4A. Does this interrogative ask for a description (y/n) / opinion (o)?

- Answer O (for opinion) if the question directly addresses the model and asks for the model's opinion. E.g., "Who do you predict would win the World Series in 2024?".
- Answer YES if the question is open-ended and asks for a description; typically, these are 'what' and 'how' questions e.g. "What is a good itinerary for a day in Melbourne". Note that "Tell me what you know about Santiago" is labelled with YES because even though it directly addresses the model, it asks for a description rather than an opinion. Answer NO if it does not ask for a description.
